SPOTLIGHT ON STUDENT ACHIEVEMENTS

Zaria R. Ashby is a third year student in the College of Arts and Sciences from the Bronx, New York. She is double majoring in Foreign Affairs and Anthropology with a minor in Entrepreneurship. As an active student at UVa, she is the president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), a Peer Advisor with the Office of African-American Affairs (OAAA), and a member of the Virginia Anthropology Society.

Zaria is also an office assistant at OAAA, and a sales associate at White House Black Market in the Barracks Road shopping area. In addition to her studies and part-time employment, Zaria spends every Friday afternoon volunteering with Habitat for Humanity where she aides in building houses for lower income residents in the Charlottesville area. After graduation, Zaria plans to start a career in either operations or strategy consulting.

You can nominate an exceptional student (not yourself) to be featured in the Spotlight on Student Achievements. Please send your nominations to Dean Patrice Grimes (pgrimes@virginia.edu) by Thursday at 12 noon for an upcoming OAAA edition.

The Office of African-American Affairs is on FACEBOOK! LIKE US to keep up-to-date with events and more info about OAAA!

Michelle Obama

First Lady Michelle LaVaughn Robinson Obama is a lawyer, writer, and the wife of the 44th and current President, Barack Obama. She is the first African American First Lady of the United States.

Through her four main initiatives, she has become a role model for women and an advocate for healthy families, service members and their families, higher education, and international adolescent girls' education. In 1996, Mrs. Obama joined the University of Chicago with a vision of bringing campus and community together. As the university's Associate Dean of Student Services, she developed the first community service program. Under her leadership as Vice President of Community and External Affairs for the University of Chicago Medical Center, volunteerism skyrocketed.

Orphée Noir

In the tradition of Black Newspapers, Orphée Noir, has emerged as a necessary voice of the Black community at UVa and beyond. It is particularly important right now! This periodical is shaped by students to represent their experience in a unique and fitting way. The hope is to capture what it means to be Black on Grounds and to consider this meaning within the larger context of Blackness. Read online at: www.orpheenoir.com

THIS WEEK IN BLACK HISTORY
WEEK OF NOVEMBER 7TH TO NOVEMBER 13TH

November 7, 1989 - Two African-American Firsts in Politics

In New York, former Manhattan borough president David Dinkins, a Democrat, is elected New York City's first African-American mayor; in Virginia, Lieutenant Governor Douglas Wilder, also a Democrat, becomes the first elected African-American state governor in American history. Although Wilder was the first African-American to be popularly elected to the governor's post, he was not the first African-American to hold that office. That distinction belongs to Pinkney Benton Stewart Pinchback, a Reconstruction-era lieutenant general of Louisiana, who became Louisiana state governor in December 1872. Visit: <http://www.history.com/this-day-in-history/two-african-american-firsts-in-politics> to learn more.

November 8, 1965 - Lawrence Joel earns Medal of Honor

For his action this day in the Iron Triangle northwest of Saigon, Specialist Five Lawrence Joel, a medic with the 1st Battalion, 503rd Airborne Infantry, and 173rd Airborne Brigade, earns the Medal of Honor. He became the first living African-American since the Spanish-American War to receive the nation's highest award for valor. President Johnson presented the Medal of Honor to Specialist Joel on March 9, 1967, in ceremonies held on the South Lawn of the White House. Visit: <http://www.history.com/this-day-in-history/lawrence-joel-earns-medal-of-honor> to learn more.

November 11, 1831 - Nat Turner executed in Virginia

Turner, a slave and educated minister, believed that he was chosen by God to lead his people out of slavery. With seven followers, Turner traveled across the countryside, hoping to rally hundreds of slaves to join his insurrection. Only a few miles from Jerusalem (VA), Turner and all of his followers were dispersed, captured, or killed. Turner himself was not captured until the end of October, 1831. He was tried, convicted, and sentenced to death. On November 11, he was hanged. Visit: <http://www.history.com/this-day-in-history/nat-turner-executed-in-virginia> to learn more.

November 12, 1914 - Civil Rights Leader Monroe Trotter confronts President Wilson in White House over Segregation

President Woodrow Wilson imposed racial segregation in federal agencies on April 11, 1913, shortly after becoming president. Civil rights groups met with him at the White House later in 1913 to protest this action. In another meeting on this day, Boston activist Monroe Trotter engaged in an angry confrontation with Wilson and was asked to leave the White House. Wilson had a very poor record on race relations, despite the urging of many prominent people to re-consider his position.

November 13, 1951 - First African-American Dancer appears with the Metropolitan Opera Company

In 1951, Janet Collins won the Donaldson Award for best dancer on Broadway for her work in Cole Porter's Out of This World. She also performed in Aida, Carmen, and was the first Black ballerina to dance at the Metropolitan Opera in New York City. She could not tour with the troupe in parts of the Deep South, because of her race. In later life, Collins taught modern dance at George Balanchine's School of American Ballet in New York City, and at the Manhattan Ville College in Purchase, New York. Janet Collins struggled repeatedly against racism and paved the way for many classical and modern ballerinas who perform today. Visit: <http://www.nytimes.com/2003/05/31/arts/janet-collins-86-ballerina-was-first-black-artist-at-met-opera.html> to learn more.
